List of Reviewers for Volumes 28 - 32

We wish to acknowledge the efforts of the referees who reviewed papers submitted for publication over the past five years and to thank them for their invaluable contributions to The Review. Without them, The Review could not have been published. Throughout the five years, we continued to be struck by the care with which papers were reviewed and by the extent and quality of the comments submitted for us to transmit to the authors. Very few papers were published as submitted; we believe that the quality of the papers published in The Review is a directly attributable to the quality of the referees' reports. Our sincerest thanks to all those listed below and also to all those whose names have inadvertently been omitted.

The Southern Regional Science Association

Since its founding in 1962, the Southern Regional Science Association has provided intellectual leadership in the study of social, economic, political, and behavioral phenomena having a spatial dimension. The Association brings together scholars from a variety of disciplines, including economics, geography, urban and regional planning, civil engineering, sociology, finance, and political science.

The primary objectives of the Association are to foster exchanges of ideas regarding, and to promote studies focusing on, one or more subnational regions. Many of our studies utilize tools, methods, and theoretical frameworks specifically developed for regional analysis. Others apply the concepts, procedures, and analytical techniques of the various constituent disciplines to regional problems.

In addition to sponsoring The Review of Regional Studies, the Association sponsors an annual meeting in the spring during which members and others with an interest in any aspect of regional science gather to present and discuss research papers. In association with the annual meeting, the Association also sponsors the Barry M. Moriarty Graduate Student Honors Competition. In addition to a prize of $500, winners of the competition are given the opportunity to present their papers at the meeting.

For additional information on the membership in the Association, the annual meeting, or the graduate student paper competition, please visit our web site at www.srsa.org. The site includes current newsletters, a membership application form, and conference registration forms. The site is updated on a regular basis and contains links to other regional science associations, government statistical agencies, and available positions in the field of regional science.
CALL FOR PAPERS

As new co-editors, Ronald Moomaw and Dan Rickman of Oklahoma State University invite regional science researchers to submit their manuscripts for publication consideration in THE REVIEW OF REGIONAL STUDIES. Starting with the 2003 issues, THE REVIEW will be published online and made available to those with subscriptions. In addition, submissions can be made online and most correspondence with the authors and referees will be conducted through e-mail. We are committed to a quick review process and we expect a dramatic increase in the speed with which research results are disseminated. We also are currently working on an agreement with EBSCO to include THE REVIEW in its online database, which has over 6,000 subscribers.

A revised and expanded editorial board will help facilitate a thorough and expeditious review process. Currently, there is space in the second issue of the 2003 volume. To submit papers or find additional information about THE REVIEW, access our website at <http://economy.okstate.edu/rrs>. All manuscript submissions must be in electronic form, either as a file directly uploaded to the web site or as an e-mail attachment sent to the editors. Please consult the web site for detailed instructions.

SUBSCRIPTION INFORMATION

Individual subscriptions to THE REVIEW OF REGIONAL STUDIES are available through membership in the Southern Regional Science Association. For 2002, membership dues are $50 per year for regular members and $20 per year for students enrolled in programs of study related to regional science. All inquiries concerning membership in the Southern Regional Science Association should be addressed to Kevin T. McNamara, Co-Executive Director, SRSA, Krannert Building, Purdue University, West Lafayette, IN 47907.

Library and other institutional subscriptions are $60 per year. Inquiries about institutional subscriptions should be addressed to: The Review of Regional Studies, College of Business Administration, Oklahoma State University, Stillwater, OK, USA 74078.
